

7. Šree Buddha Geetah Prathamo'dhyāyah Jñāna Yogam

Omn Šāntih Šāntih Šāntih

1.1. Yamaka Vargam

1. Manah poorvaṅgamā dharmā
Manah śreshṭhā manomayā |
Manasā cha pradushtena
Bhāshati vā karoti vā |
Tatas tamn dukham anveti
Chakramn vā vāhato padam ||

2. Manah poorvaṅgamā dharmā
Manah śreshṭhā manomayā |
Manasā cha prasannena
Bhāshati vā karoti vā
Tatas tamn sukham anveti
Çhaya vā hyanapāyinee ||

3. Akrokshi mām avadhi mām
Ajini mām ahāsi mām |
Ye cha tam upanayanti
Vairamn teshāmn na sammati ||

4. Akrokshi mām avadhi mām
Ajini mām ahāsi mām |
Ye cha tamn nopanayanti
Vairamn teshv-upasammati ||

5. Na hi vaireṇa vairāṇi
Sammanteeha kadāchana |
Avaireṇa cha sammanti
Hyesho dharmah sanātanaḥ ||

6. Pare cha na vijānanti
Vayam eshṭam yamāmase |

7. Šree Buddha Geetah Prathamo'dhyāyah Jñāna Yogam

Omn Peace Peace Peace

1.1. The Twins

1. The natures are those fathomed by our supreme thoughts and are filled with the
mind,
Should a person, out of an inner motive in his mind, speaks and acts, Then sin follows him, just as a wheel follows the path set by the puller of the cart.

2. The natures are those fathomed by our supreme thoughts and are filled with the
mind,
Should a person, with a well-disposed mind, speaks and acts,
Then happiness follows him, Like the shadow that never leaves the traveler.

3. “He yelled at me, he struck me,
He overpowered me, and he robbed me,”
If thoughts such as these provoke animosity, in them there is no peace.

4. “He abused me, he hurt me,
He overpowered me, and he robbed me,”
If thoughts such as these do not provoke animosity, in them there is tranquillity.

5. Not by animosity, animosity is appeased at anytime here,
But it is only through non-animosity.
This is the eternal law.

6. There are those who do not know that we must all be devoured by Yama,

Ye cha tattvamñ vijññanti
Tatah sammanti medhagñ ||

7. Šubhñnupašyin viharantam
Indriyeshu hyasamñvptam |
Bhojanamñ hy amita-jññamñ
Kuseedamñ heena veeryam |
Tamñ vai prasahati Mñro
Vñto vñkshamñ vñ durbalam ||

8. Ašubhñnupašyin viharantam
Indriyeshu susamñvptam |
Bhojanamñ hi mitajññamñ
Šraddhamñ ñrñdha veeryam |
Tamñ vai nñprasahati Mñro
Vñtah šailamñ vñ prabhñtam ||

9. Anishkñshñvah kñshñvamñ
Yo vyarthamñ paridahasñyati |
Apeto dama satyena
Sa na kñshñvamñ arhati ||

10. Yaš cha vñnta kñshñvasya
Šeeleshu susamñhita |
Upeto dama satyena
Sa vai kñshñvamñ arhati ||

11. Asñre sñra matinah
Sñre chñsñra daršinah |
Te sñramñ nñdhigacçhanti
Mithyñ sankalpa gocharñh ||

12. Sñraññ cha sñrato jñññtvñ
Hyasñraññ cha nihsñratah |
Te sñramñ adhigacçhanti
Samñ sankalpa gocharñh ||

13. Yathagñramñ hi dušçhannamñ
Vñshñtiñ samatìvidyati |
Evamñ abhñvitamñ chittamñ
Ragahñ samatìvidyati ||

14. Yathagñramñ hi suçhannamñ
Vñshñtir na samatìvidyati |

But those who understand this attain tranquillity through their insight.

7. Those, who go after desirable pleasures, without controlling their senses,
Who eat without any moderation,
and who are indolent and low in vitality, Mara overpowers them just as the wind a weak tree.

8. But those, who go after undesirable pleasures, controlling their senses,
Who eat in moderation,
and who are vigilant and full of vitality, Mara cannot overpower them just as the wind a rock.

9. Whoso puts on the ochre robe without purifying himself internally, Whoso is not self-controlled in reality,
He does not deserve the ochre robe.

10. He, who is rid of irritation,
Who is grounded in virtue,
Who has attained self-control in truth,
He indeed deserves the ochre robe.

11. Those who see truth in untruth,
And those who see untruth in truth,
They never attain the truth,
Fooled by their vain thoughts.

12. Taking truth as truth,
And untruth as untruth,
They attain the truth,
With thoughts of sameness.

13. Just as rain penetrates an ill-thatched house,
So also passion penetrates the mind which is not contemplative.

14. Just as rain does not penetrate a well-thatched house,

Evamn subhāvitamn chittamn
Rāgo na samatividyati ||

15. Iha śochati pretya śochati
Pāpa kāree ubhayatah śochati |
Sa śochati sa vihanyati
Dpshṭvā karma kilbisham ātmanah ||

16. Iha modati pretya modati
Kṛta-puṇya ubhayato modati |
Sa modati sa pramodati
Dpshṭvā karma viśuddham ātmanah ||

17. Iha tapati pretya tapati
Pāpa kāree ubhayatas tapati |
Pāpamn me kṛtam iti tapati
Bhooyas tapati durgatim āgatah ||

18. Iha nandati pretya nandati
Kṛta puṇya ubhayato nandati |
Puṇyamn me kṛtam iti nandati
Bhooyo nandati sugatim āgatah ||

19. Bahum api chen samnhitamn bhāshamānah
Sa takkaro hoti narah pramattah |
Gopo vā gavo gaṇayan pareshamn
Na bhāgavān sāma jñasya hoti ||

20. Alpam api chen samnhitamn bhāshamāno
Dharmasya bhavaty anudharma
chāree |
Rāgamn cha doshamn cha vihāya mohamn
Sāma prajñānah suvimukta chittah |
Anupādhiyāna iha vā paramn vā

So also passion does not penetrate a
mind
which is contemplative.

15. He grieves here, he grieves in the other,
The sinner grieves in both,
He grieves, he is frustrated,
On seeing his own evil deeds.

16. He rejoices here, he rejoices in the next,
The righteous man rejoices in both,
He rejoices, he becomes exhilarated
On seeing the purity of his actions.

17. He suffers here, he suffers hereafter,
The sinner suffers in both,
He suffers thinking that he has sinned,
He suffers even more on attaining a bad state.

18. He rejoices here, he rejoices hereafter,
The meritorious rejoices in both the worlds,
He rejoices thinking that he has done good,
He rejoices even more having attained a good state.

19. Although he quotes many of the Scriptural texts,
A man being indolent, he becomes a trickster,
As the cowherd counting the cows of
others,
He has no share in spiritual wisdom.

20. Although he quotes a few of the Scriptural Texts,
He becomes righteous by following the religious law.
Forsaking passion, evil, and delusion, Acquiring spiritual wisdom and becoming placid in his mind, Without carrying the adjuncts of this

Sa bhāgavān sāma jñasya hoti ||

1.2. Apramāda Vargam

21. Apramādo'mpta padamm
Pramādo mptyunā padam |
Apramattā na mriyanti
Ye pramattā yathā matā ||

22. Etamn viśeshato jñātva
Apramādo hi paṇḍitāḥ |
Apramāde pramodanti
Hyāryānamn gochare ratāḥ ||

23. Te dhyāyinaḥ sattvikasat
Nityamn dhṛta parākramāḥ |
Poshanti dheerā nirvāṇamn
Yoga kshemam anuttaram ||

24. Uttonavataḥ sateḥ mataḥ
Śuchi karmasya nishṭhā kṛiṇāḥ |
Samnyatasya cha dharma jeevino'
Pramattasya yaśo'bhivardhati ||

25. Utthānena-apramādena
Samnyamena damena vā |
Dveepamn kurveetha medhāvee
Yam ogro nābhikirati ||

26. Pramādam anuyuñjanti
Bālā durmedhino janāḥ |
Apramādañ cha medhāvee
Dhanamn śreshṭhamn vā rakshati ||
27. Mā pramādam anuyuñjetha
Mā kāma rati sanstavam |
Apramatto hi dhyāyantah
Prāpnoti vipḥulam sukham ||

28. Pramādam apramādena world or the yonder, He becomes a shareholder of the spiritual knowledge.

1.2. The Safe Path

21. Right course leads to immortality,
The wrong path leads to death,
One who is not indolent never dies,
Whoso is indolent suffers likewise.

22. On knowing this aspect,
The wise resort to the safe path,
They rejoice in their safety,
Those who are well-behaved among men.

23. Those contemplative persons,
Who are extremely pure,
Are always full of valor,
The valiant bring forth the quietude,
And secure the greatest safety.

24. If a person is upright and reflective, If his deeds are pure and performed with dexterity,
If he is self-controlled living according to the law, his glory increases.

25. By rising above, through vigilance, restraint and self-control,
A wise must make himself an island
So that the flood (of saṁsāra) cannot overwhelm him.

26. The foolish and the wicked persons Become reckless,
But the wise are ever vigilant as if they are guarding their precious wealth.

27. Give not yourself to indolence, Let there be no praise of the sensual pleasure,
He, who meditates without indolence,
Attains the greatest happiness.

28. Just as the wise man removes

Yadā nudati paṇḍitah |
Prajñā prāsādam aruhyā
Hyaśokah śokinamṇ prajām |
Parvatastho vā bhoomastho
Dheero bāle hyavekshati ||

29. Apramattah pramatteshu
Supteshu bahu jāgarah |
Abalāśvamṇ vā śeeghraśvo
Hitvā yāti sumedhasah ||

30. Apramādena Maghavan
Devānāṃ śreshṭhamṇ gatah |
Apramādamṇ praśamṇsanti
Pramādo garhitah sadā ||

31. Apramāda rato bhikshuh
Pramāde bhaya darśin vā |
Samnyojanam aṇum sthoolamṇ
Dāham agnir vā gacchati ||

32. Apramāda rato bhikshuh
Pramāde bhaya darśin vā |
Abhyarbah parihaṇya
Nirvāṇasyaiva santike ||

1.3. Chitta Vargam

33. Spandanamṇ chapalamṇ chittamṇ Doorakshyamṇ durnivāryam |
ṛjumn karoti medhāvee
Ishukāro vā tejanam ||

34. Vārijo vā tale khittō
Okam okata ubhatah |
Parispandateedamṇ chittamṇ
Māra-dhāyamṇ prahātave ||

35. Durnigrahamṇ lashaṇō
Yathā kāmānupātinah |
Chittasya damatah sādhu

indolence through vigilance,
Climbing the lofty seat of wisdom,
So also a man of wisdom,
Sorrowless and seated on a mountain, gazes upon the ignorant and the suffering dwelling on the plains.

29. Vigilant among the indolent,
Awake among the sleepy,
A wise person moves forward, Just as a swift horse leaves behind the weaklings.

30. By being vigilant, Maghavan Became the prominent among gods,
Vigilance is always praised,
Thoughtlessness is looked down always.

31. The mendicant delighting himself in vigilance, looks upon thoughtlessness
with fear,
He moves about as fire
Consuming all bonds small or large.

32. The mendicant delighting himself in vigilance, looks upon thoughtlessness
with fear,
And cannot fall from the seat of enlightenment.

1.3. Chitta Vargam

33. The vacillation and the fickleness of the mind is hard to control and is difficult to avoid,
But the wise person makes it straight like a blacksmith the arrow.

34. Just as a fish alarmed on the ground Springs from this side to that side, So also this mind quivers in order to escape the noose of death.

35. It is difficult to control the longing,
As it arises from passion,
It is good to control the mind,
Pacification of the mind brings delight.

Chittamn dāntamn sukhāvaham ||

36. Sudurdarśamn sunipuṇamn
Yathā kāmānupātinaṃ |
Chittamn rakshetha medhāvee
Chittamn goptamn sukhāvaham ||

37. Doorangamam ekaś charam
Aśareeramn guhāśrayam |
Ye chittamn samnyameshyanti
Mokshanti mōra bandhanāt ||

38. Anavasthita chittasya
Sad dharmam avijñānataḥ |
Pariplava prasādasya
Prajñā na paripoorati ||

39. Anavaśyata chittasya
Ananvāhata chetasah |
Punṇyā pāpa praheenāsyā
Nāsti jaḡarato bhayam ||

40. Kumbhopamamn kāyam imamn
viditvā
Nagaropamamn chittam idamn
sthāpetvā |
Yoddhetha mōramn prajñāyudhena
Jitamn cha rakshed anveshaṇah śriyā ||

41. Achiramvat ayamn kāyo
Pṛthiveem adhiśeshyati |
Kshudro hyapeta vijñāno
Nirarthamn vā kalingaram ||

42. Dvisho dvishamn yamn tamn kurute
Vairee vā praṇa vairiṇam |
Mithyāpahaṇitamn chittamn
Pāpeeyo nas tatah kare ||

43. Na tamn mātā pitā kurute

36. A wise man should protect his mind,
Which is extremely difficult to perceive, and which is dexterous in the pursuit of desires as they come by,
The protection of the mind leads to happiness.

37. They who confine the thought, Wandering afar through singular devotion
To the incorporeal stationed in the cave of the heart,
They are freed from the noose of death.

38. If a person's mind is unsteady,
And is ignorant of the golden law,
and if the serenity is evasive,
Then his wisdom lacks perfection.

39. There is no fear for him,
Whose mind is untroubled,
Whose mind is not carried away,
and who has exhausted his merit and sin.

40. Knowing this body is fragile like a jar,
Establishing the mind as a city,
One should fight with death using the weapon of knowledge, One should protect the gain being attached to it.

41. Momentarily,
This body crouches on the ground,
Despised without consciousness,
Useless like peat.

42. Whatever a hater may do to a hater, Whatever a rival may do an old rival,
Seized by false pretenses,
This mind will do us greater harm.

43. Neither mother, nor father, nor any one,

Anye vāpi cha jñātakah |
Samarpaṇa hitamṇ chittamṇ
Śreyaso nas tatah kare ||

Nor any other relative can do
As much good to us
As the mind which is well-directed.

1.4. Pushpa Vargam

1.4. The Flowers

44. Ko imamṇ ppthiveemṇ vijesyati
Yama lokaṇ cha sadevakam |
Ko dharma padamṇ sudarśitamṇ
Kuśalo pushpam iva paśye sati ||

44. Who shall conquer this world,
And the world of Yama with all its gods?
Who shall find this well-taught Path of righteousness,
As an expert finds the right flower ?

45. Śekhah ppthiveemṇ vijesyati
Yama lokaṇ cha imamṇ sadevakam |
Śekho dharma padamṇ sudeśitamṇ
Kuśalo puspham iva paśye sati ||

45. The seeker will conquer this world,
And the world of Yama with all its gods,
The seeker who is taught well
the path of virtue,
As an expert finds the right flower.

46. Phenopamamṇ kāyam imamṇ
viditvā
Mareechi dharmam abhisambudhyānah |
Çetvāna mārasya prapushpakāni
Hyadarśanamṇ mptyu rājasya gacçhet ||

46. Knowing that this body is like foam,
And is of the nature of a mirage,
Breaking the flowery shafts of Mara,
He will go out of sight of the King of Death.

47. Pushpāṇi hyeva prachinvantamṇ
Vyāsatta mānasamṇ naram |
Suptamṇ grāmamṇ mahowgho vā
Mptyur ādāya gacçhati ||

47. A man who is collecting flowers only,
And is distracted in his mind,
Death carries him away
As a flood washes off a sleeping village.

48. Pusphāṇi hyeva prachinvantamṇ
Vyāsatta mānasamṇ param |
Ateetamṇ hyeva kāmeshu
Antakah kurute'vaśam ||

48. A man who is collecting flowers only, and is distracted in his mind, Even before he has fulfilled his desires,
Death brings him under his control.

49. Yathāpi bhramaro pushpamṇ
Varṇa gandham aethyam |
Paleti rasam ādāya
Evamṇ grāme munee charet ||

49. Just as a bumble bee gathers honey From a flower without hurting the flower, or its color or its scent,
So also a sage should dwell in a village.

50. Na pareshamṇ vilomāni
Na pareshamṇ kṛtākṛtam |
Ātmanā vā avekshaya
Karmāṇy akarmāṇi cha ||

50. It is not the unworthy actions of others,
It is not the good and bad deeds of
others,
One should take into account,

51. Yathāpi ruchiramn pushpam
Varṇavantam agandhakam |
Evam subhāshita vāchā
Aphalā bhaved akurvatah ||

52. Yathāpi ruchiramn pushpam
Varṇavantam sagandhakam |
Evam subhāshita vāchā
Saphalā bhavet sakurvatah ||

53. Yathāpi pushpa rāṣimn hā
Kurvāṇa māla guṇe bahooḥ |
Evam jātēna martyena
Kartavyam kuśalam bahum ||

54. Na pushpa gandhah prativṛtam eti
Na chandanam tagaram mallikā vā |
Satañ cha gandhah prativṛtam eti
Sarva diśah sapurushah pravṛti ||

55. Chandanam tagaram vāpi
Utpalam atha vasookā |
Eteṣāmn gandha jātānāmn
Śeela gandho' nuttaram ||

56. Alpa mātro' yam gandho
Yacchāyam tagara chandāni |
Yaś cha śeelavatam gandho
Vṛti devebhya uttamah ||

57. Teshāmn sampanna śeelānam
Apramāda viharīṇam |
Samādhanā vimuktānāmn
Māro mārgam na vindati ||

58. Yathā samnkāra dhānasmin

But his own actions which are good and bad.

51. Just as a beautiful flower,
Splendid in color but without scent,
So also are the well-spoken words
Of a person become futile,
When not put into practice.

52. Just as a beautiful flower,
Splendid in color and full of scent,
So also the well-spoken words
Of a person bear fruit,
When put into practice.

53. Just as many kinds of garlands may be made out of a heap of flowers, So also many good deeds may be performed by a mortal on coming into existence.

54. The scent of flowers does not travel against the wind,
Whether it be sandalwood,
tagaram or jasmine,
But the scent of the good people goes
against the wind,
A good man pervades every quarter.

55. Sandalwood or even tagara,
A lotus flower or a vasooka flower
Among these which are fragrant,
The fragrance of virtue is unsurpassed.

56. Little is the scent that comes from tagara or sandalwood,
Whereas the scent of the virtuous
Reaches even the gods stationed above.

57. Of those possessing virtues,
Roaming in vigilance,
Who are freed by perfect knowledge,
Death cannot find their way.

58. Just as from rubbish thrown on a

Varjitasmin mahā pathe |
Padmam ha tathā jayetha
Śuchi gandhamn manoramam ||

59. Evamn samnkāra bhooteshu
Hyandha bhoote puthur jane |
Atirochati prajñāya
Samnā sambuddha sevakāh ||

1.5. Bala Vargam

60. Deergha jagarato rātri
Deergham ayantasya yojanam |
Deergo bālānamn samnsarah
Sadharmam avijñātam ||

61. Charaṇ chen nādhigaccheya
Śreyamn sādṛśam ātmanā |
Ekaś charan drāghamn kuryād
Nāsti bāle sahayata ||

62. Putrā me'sti dhanamn me'sti
Evamn ha bālo vadanti |
Ātmā ched ātmano nāsti
Kutah putrah kuto dhanam ||

63. Yo bālo manyate bālyamn
Paṇḍito vāpi tenasow |
Bālo cha paṇḍitamānee
Saiva bāla ity uchyate ||

64. Yavaj jeevam api cha bālah
Paṇḍitamn paryupāsate |
Na sa dharmamn vijñānati
Darvee soopa rasam iva ||

65. Muhoortam api chen vijñāh
Paṇḍitamn paryupāsyati |
Kshipramn dharman vijñānati
Jihvā soopa rasam iva ||

mound along the highway, A lotus with a pleasant fragrance and pleasing to the mind grows,

59. So also from unwanted beings,
And blinded mortals cast down,
Shines forth wisdom from those grounded in the extraction of awakening.

1.5. The Fools

60. Long is the night for him who is awake,
Long is the journey for him who is weary,
Long is the empirical existence for a fool,
Who does not know the true law.

61. If a person does not meet his better or equal on a journey to accompany him, Let him continue the journey by himself,
There is no companionship from a fool.

62. A fool thinks that he has children, and that he has wealth,
But when he does not possess his own soul,
How can there be children and wealth?

63. That fool, who knows his foolishness,
Is wise to that extent,
A fool, who thinks he is wise,
Is called a fool indeed.

64. A fool even when associated with A scholar for his entire life,
Does not grasp the truth,
As a ladle the taste of the soup.

65. Even for a moment a bright person
Be associated with a learned man,
He soon knows the truth,
As the tongue the taste of the soup.

66. Charanti bala durmedha
Amitrenaiva atmana |
Kurvanti papakam karma
Yamni hoti karuka phalam ||

67. Na tamni karmamni krtamni sadhu
Yamni krtva hyanutarpati |
Yasya hyashru mukho rodamni
Vipakamni pratisevati ||

68. Tamni hi karmamni krtamni sadhu
Yamni krtva nanutarpati |
Yasya prateeta sumano
Vipakamni pratisevati ||

69. Madhu va manyati bala
Yavat papamni na pachati |
Yada cha pachati papamni
Tada dukhamni nigacchati ||

70. Mase mase kushagreha
Balo bhuñjetha bhojanam |
Na sa sankhyata dharmanamni
Kalam arghati shodasim ||

71. Na hi papamni krtamni karmamni
Sadyuh ksheeramni va muchyati |
Dahamni tamni balamni anveti
Bhasmacchanno va pravakah ||

72. Yavad eva hyanarthaya
Jnatamni balasya jayati |
Hanti balasya sukhanishamni
Moordham asya vipatayam ||

73. Asatamni bhavanamni icchayati
Puraskharamni cha bhikshushu |
Avashesu cha eeshvareyamni
Pooja para kuleshu cha ||

74. Mam eva kartamnyantu

66. Fools with little understanding behave as if they are enemies to themselves,
They go on performing bad action which bears bitter fruit.

67. That deed is not well-done,
In case it brings remorse,
For him the reward is weeping,
With a tearful countenance.

68. That deed is indeed well-done,
In case it does not bring remorse,
For him the reward is well-composed mind and delight.

69. The fool thinks of sin as honey
As long as it does not ripen,
When once the sin ripens,
Then it brings suffering.

70. Let a fool eat his food with a tip of the Kusha grass month after month, Even then he accrues only a sixteenth part of merit of those who have well-understood the law.

71. Even a bad action committed does not bear fruit at once like the instant milk,
It follows the fool like smoldering fire covered by the ashes.

72. As long as a fool acquires knowledge without understanding,
It destroys his share of happiness and becomes the cleaver of his head.

73. As long as a person acquires knowledge for preeminence among the mendicants,
As also for lordship in anniversaries,
And worshipping among other castes,

74. Let both the householders and the Gphee prabhājita ubhowh |

Mām eva chātivasāstu
Kṛtākṛtyeshu kis miti |
Iti bālasya sankalpa
Icchā māno cha vardhati ||

75. Anyā cha lābhopanishā
Anyā nirvāṇa gāminee |
Evam etam abhijñāya
Bhikshur Buddhasya sevakah |
Satkāramn nābhinandeya
Vivekam anubroohayet ||

Omn Śāntih Śāntih Śāntih

mendicants think of me as the performer of action,
Let them follow my instruction as to what should be done and what should not be done,
Such is the thinking of a fool.
Thus his desire and pride increase.

75. One is the road for gain,
Another is the road for Nirvana,
Understanding them in this manner, Let those mendicants, who are the disciples of Buddha,
Do not aspire for reward,
But seek wisdom only.

Omn Peace Peace Peace

